Five friends started their Saturday night by going out for pizza. Each person chose a pizza from the menu and added an extra ingredient. Using the clues, can you determine which pizza each person chose, the ingredient they added, and the price?

1. The girl, who has paid 6.00 euros, has not eaten the Capricciosa pizza nor the Romana pizza, and she has asked to add either olives or ham to it. One of the two boys has chosen the Napoli pizza.

2. The Margherita pizza cost 0.50 euros more than the one chosen by Valentina (who did not ask for olives), but less than the pizza chosen by Roberta (who did not add artichokes). Neither olives nor ham were added to the Valdostana pizza.
3. The price of the Romana pizza was one euro less than the price of the pizza with mushrooms added. Buffalo mozzarella was not added to the pizza that had a lower price than the Napoli pizza.

4. The friend who asked for artichokes on the pizza paid less than Giordano, but more than the person who chose the Valdostana one.
